CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

Addresses Delivered by the President and Mr. Hay.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The crowning event in the centennial anniversary of the listorical New York Avenue Presbyterian church in this city took place last night when a public meeting was heid which was attended by many of the best known officials in the city. They included President Roosevelt and Becrotary Hay, both of whom made addresses. Secretaries Shaw, Moody, Hitchcock and Cortelyou, Attorney General Knox, the greater number of justices of the supreme court of the United States and Senator Frye, Justice Harlan of the supreme court presided. United States and Senator Frye. Justice Harlan of the supreme court presided. The president and Secretary Hay occupied the Lincoln pew, and both had something to say of the martyred president. Secretary Hay's brief address being confined exclusively to that subject. President Roosevelt said in part:

"We can divide and must divide on party lines as regards the vital questions. We can and must divide and I have the right to challenge the best effort of every American worthy of the name to putting down by every means in his power corruption in public life, and above all corruption in public life, and above all corruption in public life, and above all corruption in public life. schism in the party to which they beis his power corruption in private life,

Massach would be trite to say anything abou Lincoln and yet I am going to point to one thing: In reading his works and speeches, his addresses, one is struck by the fact that us he went higher and higher all personal bitterness seened to dle out of him. In the Lincoln-Douglass debate one can still catch now and debate one can still catch now and then a note of personal antagonism.

"The man was on the arena and as the blows were given and taken you could see now and then that he had a feeling against his antagonist. When he became president and faced the crisis that he had to face from that time on I do not think that you can find any expression, a speech of Lincoln, a word of Lincoln written or spoken, in which bitterness is shown to any man. His of Lincoln written or spoken, in which bitterness is shown to any man. His devotion to the cause was so great that he neither could not would have feeling against any individual."

Mr. Hay said in part:

"We should never forget that Abraham Lincoln was one of the most faithful and devoted servants of Almighty food that ever are in the places. When God that ever sat in high places. When he stood on the rear platform of the car that was about to bear him from his home to the capital of the nation, he spoke to his people, acknowledging his dependence on God and asked their prayers. And from that time on he again and again declared his faith in Divine Providence."

"The past would rise before him as a terrible apparition. It would paralyze him and his supporters and unnerve and undo them. The true Democrats of the country have suffered at his hands all the humiliation that they will ever endure.

"During his first administration he threw the weight of his great office against every tendency of his party to restore silver to its constitutional function as money. His known wishes upon the subject held the Democratic party in abeyance. The power of public patronage and the reluctance of members of congress to break with the first Democrat who had been elected president in 28 years, neutralized the party and prevented such action as was expected by ministration twice thwarted his party. By taking advantage of that partizan extremity and loyal devotion which he knew would exempt him from assault, he with impunity, suppressed the as-pirations and smothered the sentiments of his party; and then escaped the just Bailey punishment in store for him in the conpartizan necessity.

"After his second nomination, he was, by the logic of politics, the master of his party; which did not seem to realize that he was directing it and had brought about his own renomination. Few men divined his real character. The late Governor George T. Anthony, was one of the few. He once told me that Cleveland was one of the most subtle. profound and accomplished politicians of the age: and yet he posed successfully as a simple hearted, hard headed, 'plain

Warden McClaughry will transfer the convicts to Topeka as quietly as possible, and it is probable an effort will be made to conceal the time of their arrival here. Word has been recelved here from Texas that Hewitt, the prisoner who is serving time there for horse theft, has been pardoned and will be rearrested and brought back immediately by the federal authorities.

pardon had been secured. Brakeman's Legs Amputated. Atchison, Nov. 17.—Frank Bound, a Missouri Pacific freight brakeman, had both legs amputated below the knees, as the result of an accident at Stella, Neb., Saturday night. In getting off a moving engine, he ran into a freight truck on the depot platform and was thrown under the wheels.
